U. S. NOW CREDITOR NATION TO $5,765,000,000 EXTENT

Figures Show Changes in Interna tional Financial Situation Since War Began, The following figures show the changes

n the international financial situation f the United States since the outbreak of the war: United States securities held abroad at beginning of the war, $4,000,000,006. United States property owned by non-resident foreigners, $1,000,000,000. Excess of gold imports over export July 1, 1914-July 1, 1918, $1,040,000,- Foreign securities and other property owned by American citizens at beginning of war credit, $1,600,000,000. Excess of merchandise exports over imports July 1, 1914, to July 1, 1918, Excess of silver exports over imports July 1, 1914, to July 1, 1918, $195,000,000.

Using this estimate as a basis, we are now a creditor nation to the extent of The merchandise trade balance plus the silver export balance amounted to a little over ten billion dollars. In return for this we received gold to the extent returned to us about two billion dollars of our own securities that had been held abroad, and we have loaned to our Allies and other foreign countries about seven and one half billion dollars.

The difference of about a quarter of a billion dollars is probably represented by loans their bave not been used up.
